Conserve water to tide over climate change challenges: FAO

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Mumbai, 21 April

Water-intensive crops like sugarcane cultivation is not suitable for a water-starved Maharashtra. Such crops should ideally move to the Gangetic states like Bihar and Brahmaputra-irrigated Assam

The country's farm sector has the wherewithal to sustain the vagaries of climate change and increase farm production, if water conservation is taken seriously, Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) India representative Shyam Khadka said on Friday.

"The good news for India is that it has well-developed agriculture systems. Besides, it has several agricultural universities and even private parties are entering farm research. This has produced good results since the 1960s taking food production up five times now," Khadka told a CII conference in Mumbai.

He further said, "the country's agriculture has the wherewithal to overcome the problems of climate change and take the path of sustainable and climate-smart farming by using mitigation tools, adapting technology and new crops." Admitting that numerous agro-climatic conditions pose challenges to its manoeuvrability in the wake of climate change, Khadka said the country has already identified the direction it has to take in terms of crop shifting.

Pointing out that water-intensive crops like sugarcane cultivation is not suitable for a water-starved Maharashtra, he said such crops should ideally move to the Gangetic states like Bihar and Brahmaputra-irrigated Assam.

"Under the 'Go East' policy of government, the focus will be on Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, Assam and Odisha. It is just that it has to be implemented on the ground," he said.

Highlighting worsening water scarcity in recent years, he said Punjab is guzzling 6 billion cubic meters of water annually, taking the ground water levels from 125 ft to over 400 ft now. Centrifugal pumps are obsolete today and only submersible pumps can come to the rescue.

The world population will rise to 9 billion by 2050, from 7 billion now. This will double the food supply needs, Tata Sons sustainability group head Shankar Venkateswaran told the conference. He also said the world has to double food production by 2050 to feed teeming billions.

Royal Enfield opens subsidiary in Brazil

Al pilot 'flouts' final release check norms

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Mumbai, 21 April

Royal Enfield on Friday inaugurated its first direct distribution subsidiary in the Brazilian capital of Sao Paulo apart from opening its first stand-alone flagship store there.

Brazil is the fourth biggest two-wheeler market in the world and this subsidiary there makes the second one for the Eicher Motors-owned two-wheeler maker outside the country.

Royal Enfield opened its first direct distribution subsidiary outside the country in the US in 2015 as Royal Enfield North America.

The newly-formed subsidiary, Royal Enfield Brazil, will be selling to dealers, as well as conduct all front-end activities such as marketing and after-sales in the Latin American country. It's also present in neighbouring Colombia.

Royal Enfield president Rudrajeet Singh said the move will help it realise the competitive potential in the fourth biggest motorcycle market in the world. We see a huge opportunity in Brazil that has a hugely under-served mid-sized motorcycle market with a massive commuter base, he added.

Royal Enfield has entered Brazil with a line-up of three of its widely popular models featuring single-cylinder engines under 535-cc category such as the iconic standard street model -- Bullet 500, the retro street model - Classic 500, and the Continental GT (535cc) cafe racer, Singh said.

With a CAGR of over 50 per cent in the past six years, Royal Enfield has grown phenomenally, becoming one of the most profitable automobile brands in the world and the world's fastest growing two-wheeler brand.

A senior Air India (AI) pilot has been accused of flouting the airline's norms for conducting final release check of a junior pilot. According to AI's training manual, approved by the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA), the final release check of a first officer (co-pilot) can be conducted only by a Type Rated Instructor (TRI).

"However, in contravention to this, the Chennai-based senior pilot, a DGCA-approved Designated Examiner, misused his official position and conducted the final release check of a co-pilot belonging to the airline," a source alleged.

As part of their training, a co-pilot or first officer undergoes different checks during his flight, which are conducted by Line Training Captain (LTC), TRI and Designated Examiner (DE), depending upon the level of training.

"In this case, the final release check of the co-pilot was to be conducted by a Type Rated Instructor. But it was conducted by a DE despite he not being mandated to do so. So far no action has been taken against this commander," the source said.

A response from Air India spokesperson on this issue was awaited. The source also claimed this senior commander was earlier a flight operations inspector with the DGCA and was removed from the post when he tested positive for alcohol in a pre-flight medical test.

"He was removed from all training assignments for a period of three years by the DGCA. However, as soon he completed the three-year period, the Air India management recommended his name to the DGCA for DE post and asked it to restore his training privileges," the source said.
